C. Herbert Adams

Principal of Ames Senior High School, 1943—1969

Mr. Adams retires after

ADDRESSING HIS LAST sophomore class, Mr. Adams welcomes the newcomers at orientation.

25 years as AHS principal

THE DOOR to Mr. Adams' office was always open to students like Joe Calhoun looking for friendly advice.

The 1969 SPIRIT staff dedicates this book to Mr. C. Herbert Adams, principal of Ames Senior High School from 1944 to 1969.

Mr. Adams was born in Castlewood, South Dakota, in 1904, and he graduated from high school there in 1922. Mr. Adams, a Phi Beta Kappa, received his BS degree from South Dakota State in 1933, and his MA from the State University of Iowa in 1941. He taught for a year at Hayti, South Dakota, before moving to Rock Rapids, Iowa, where he served for two years. He worked for 16 years in LeMars as a junior high math teacher, then as the junior high principal, and, finally, as the high school principal.

In addition to his 25 years as principal of Ames High, Mr. Adams served for 13 years on the Iowa State University summer school staff. He is a member of the boards of the Iowa High School Insurance Company, the Iowa Association of Secondary School Principals, and its national counterpart. He has also served on the board of the Iowa High School Athletic Association for 10 years, and he is first man ever to have served two successive terms as its president.

English Department adds units on black literature,

New units on black literature, the Bible, and mass media were added to English courses this year. The curriculum was revised to provide a sequential program in literature, composition, and language. Every grade was assigned certain areas to cover in each of these major divisions.

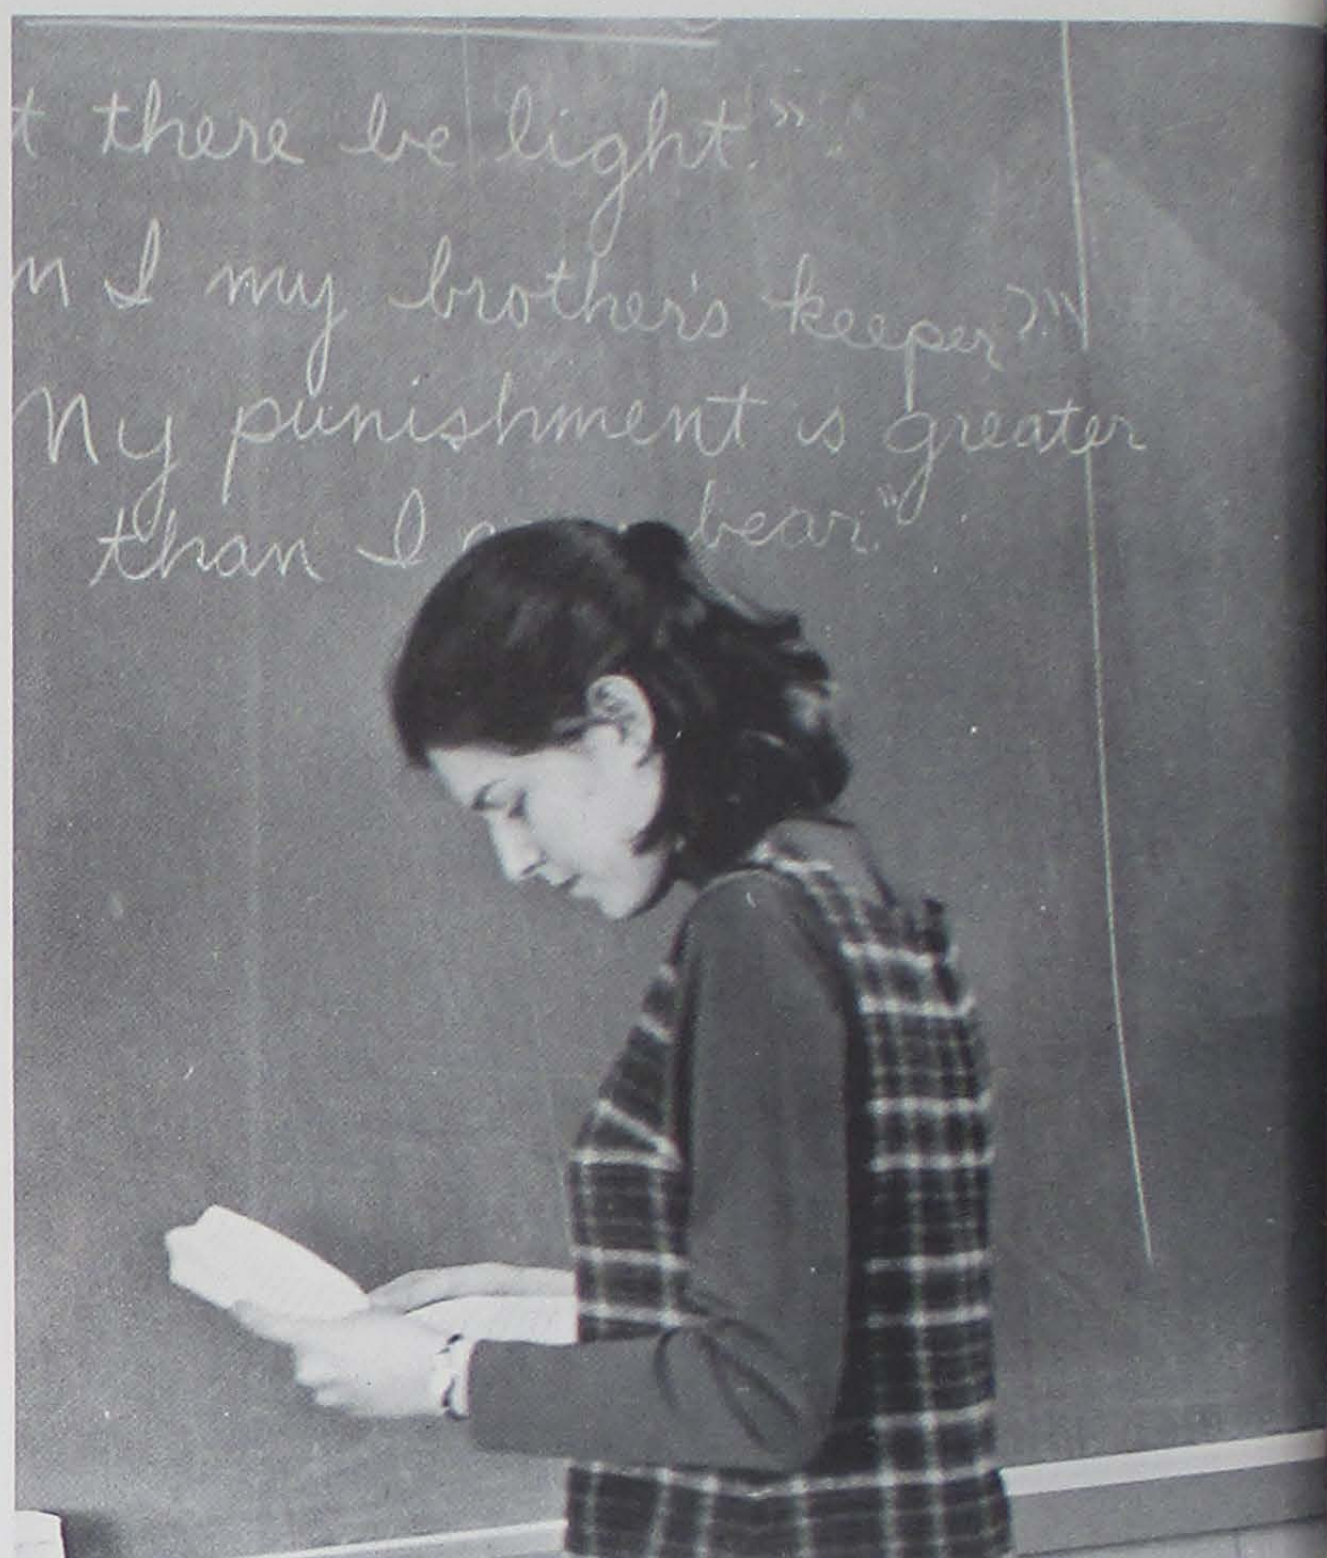

Emphasis was placed upon drama as a literary form in tenth grade. Juniors concentrated on the novel and comedy, and seniors studied tragedy, satire, and the formal essay.

New features of junior English included a unit of black literature. English 12 was completely reorganized, concentrating on mass media.

Seniors in Advanced Standing Senior English included a study of the Bible as literature, with emphasis on passages often alluded to in other literature. Miss McNally, the instructor, said that today's students often are not as familiar with the Bible as students were in the past.

All students must take four full years of English. Six senior electives are offered: English and world Literature, Journalism, two semesters of English 12, and Developmental Reading, which also may be elected other years.

BIBLICAL QUOTATIONS and book titles were collected by Marian Carlson and Jeff Lemish for Advanced Standing class.

4 languages offered; lab provides oral-aural experience

Students and teachers speak four different languages at Ames High: French, Spanish, Latin, and German. This year there were classes up to fourth year in Spanish and French, and second year in German and Latin.

Spanish classes celebrated Easter, Christmas, and Dia de los Muertos in the traditional manner of Latin America and Spain. Latin students studied the life and culture of the Romans. The German classes often sang old German folk songs. The French classes attended a French fete with other schools at State Center.

Election year sparks interest in politics, in social studies

The 1968 political campaign played an important role in the social studies curriculum. Politics and early American development were examined in American History and American Government.

This year, for the first time, an honors course was offered for American History. This course contained the usual survey, as well as emphasizing past causes of present social and economic problems.

The newest facets of social studies were the introduction of material on black influences on the American way of life. Also class dramatizations were used to make historic happenings more understandable.

World History, International Relations, Sociology, and Economics were offered for the college-bound student.

Mr. Heideman and the department reevaluated the courses offered and stressed that students not college bound should be given a broader background.

Students taking art, 150 each semester, were in smaller classes this year because of separate teaching. Both new this year, Mrs. Schneider and Miss Gugel incorporated more visual aids and activities such as egg tempera, silkscreen, and weaving into the classes.

Several changes were made this year in the physical education program, of which Mr. Smalling is director. Letter grades again were used instead of the pass-fail system. An additional boys' P.E. teacher, Mr. Bailey, was added. Mrs. Switzer also was new.

Golf, archery, and gymnastics were expanded to give the AHS girls a better understanding of the skills and basic fundamentals. Modern dance, basketball, swimming, recreational games, and track and field also were offered. Boys were taught football, wrestling, swimming, and track and field. Sophomores, both boys and girls, were required to take swimming, while it was an elective for upper classmen.

Besides stressing athletics, health courses were given by showing movies on the dangers of alcoholism and drugs.

OE, business courses provide job training; some learn at work

Secretarial, accounting, and business law courses were offered to Ames High students this year as preparation for future careers. Typing, stenography, and shorthand were skills taught for application in business as well as in school.

Office education programs provided on-the-job training for seniors, plus high school credit. Through these experiences, a student was better qualified to meet the demands of business.

Miss O'Brien was sponsor of OE Club. She also taught the Office Education class and supervised cadet teaching. Mr. Garman was the assistant sponsor of OE Club and taught Business Law and typing. Mr. Havener was director of industrial education. Mrs. Weaver, Mrs. Garrett, and Mrs. Buttrey taught typing and Mrs. Buttrey also taught bookkeeping. One-half of Senior Class learns through doing

More than one-half of the senior class participated in some form of vocational education. Under this program students go to school one-half day and gain work experience for the rest of the day. Several fields are open, including nursing, teaching, retailing, and industrial trades.

Each student received a grade from his instructor and from his employer.

Those students involved in retailing belonged to the Distributive Education Club of America. The club met regularly to put retail principles into practice. In April, the state DECA convention was held and the outstanding young delegate was chosen. At the area convention Tony Bleeker and Kathy Coon sought offices, and Kathy was elected area vice-president.

The counseling department advised students of the best ways to use their talents. In individual counseling sessions the students were given the opportunity to discuss problems and future plans with their counselors. Humanities course seeks to create students' creativity

Ames High offered a course in appreciation of the arts for the first time this year. The course, Humanities, was offered as an elective for 1/2 credit per semester.

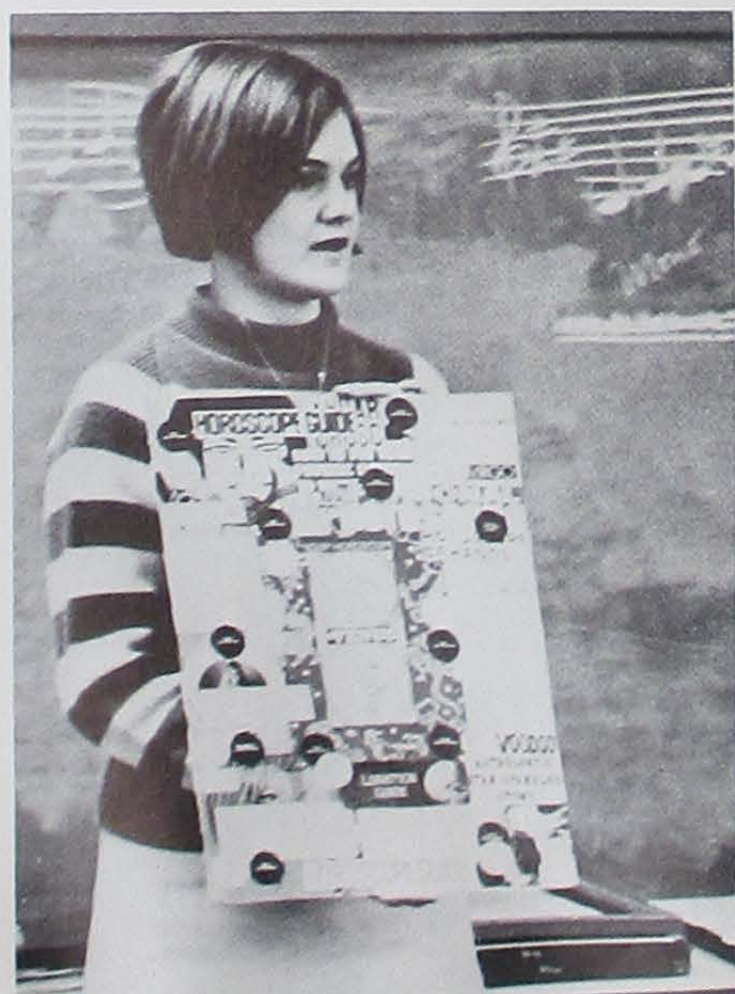

Under the instruction of Mr. Al Wiser, the class sought to develop creativity. Students produced a variety of individual projects; a tape collage, an original mythology, a show on lighting effects, and original musical compositions were included.

Guest lecturers and field trips were included in the program, besides lectures, slides, and discussions. All the arts, including architecture, were covered. Class members visited a number of architectural landmarks in the spring. The classes, which met three times a week, also discussed art films and similar productions. Broadening the cultural tastes of the students was a prime objective of the course, according to Mr. Wiser.

Sophomore Band strives for versatility, precision

Under the direction of Mr. Richard Day, the Sophomore Band members prepared for joining Concert Band when they become juniors and seniors.

Meeting twice a week on Tuesdays and Thursdays, the band practiced all types of music to acquaint the musicians with a variety of music styles and enable the individual members to become more adept in the use of their instruments.

After many hours of preparation, the Sophomore Band gave its first concert on the evening of February 11.

Displaying its versatility, the band performed "Americans We," a march; "Prelude in Fugue," a classical piece; "Golden Boy" and "Lady of Spain," both more modern compositions.

After 41 years as band director, Mr. Day retires

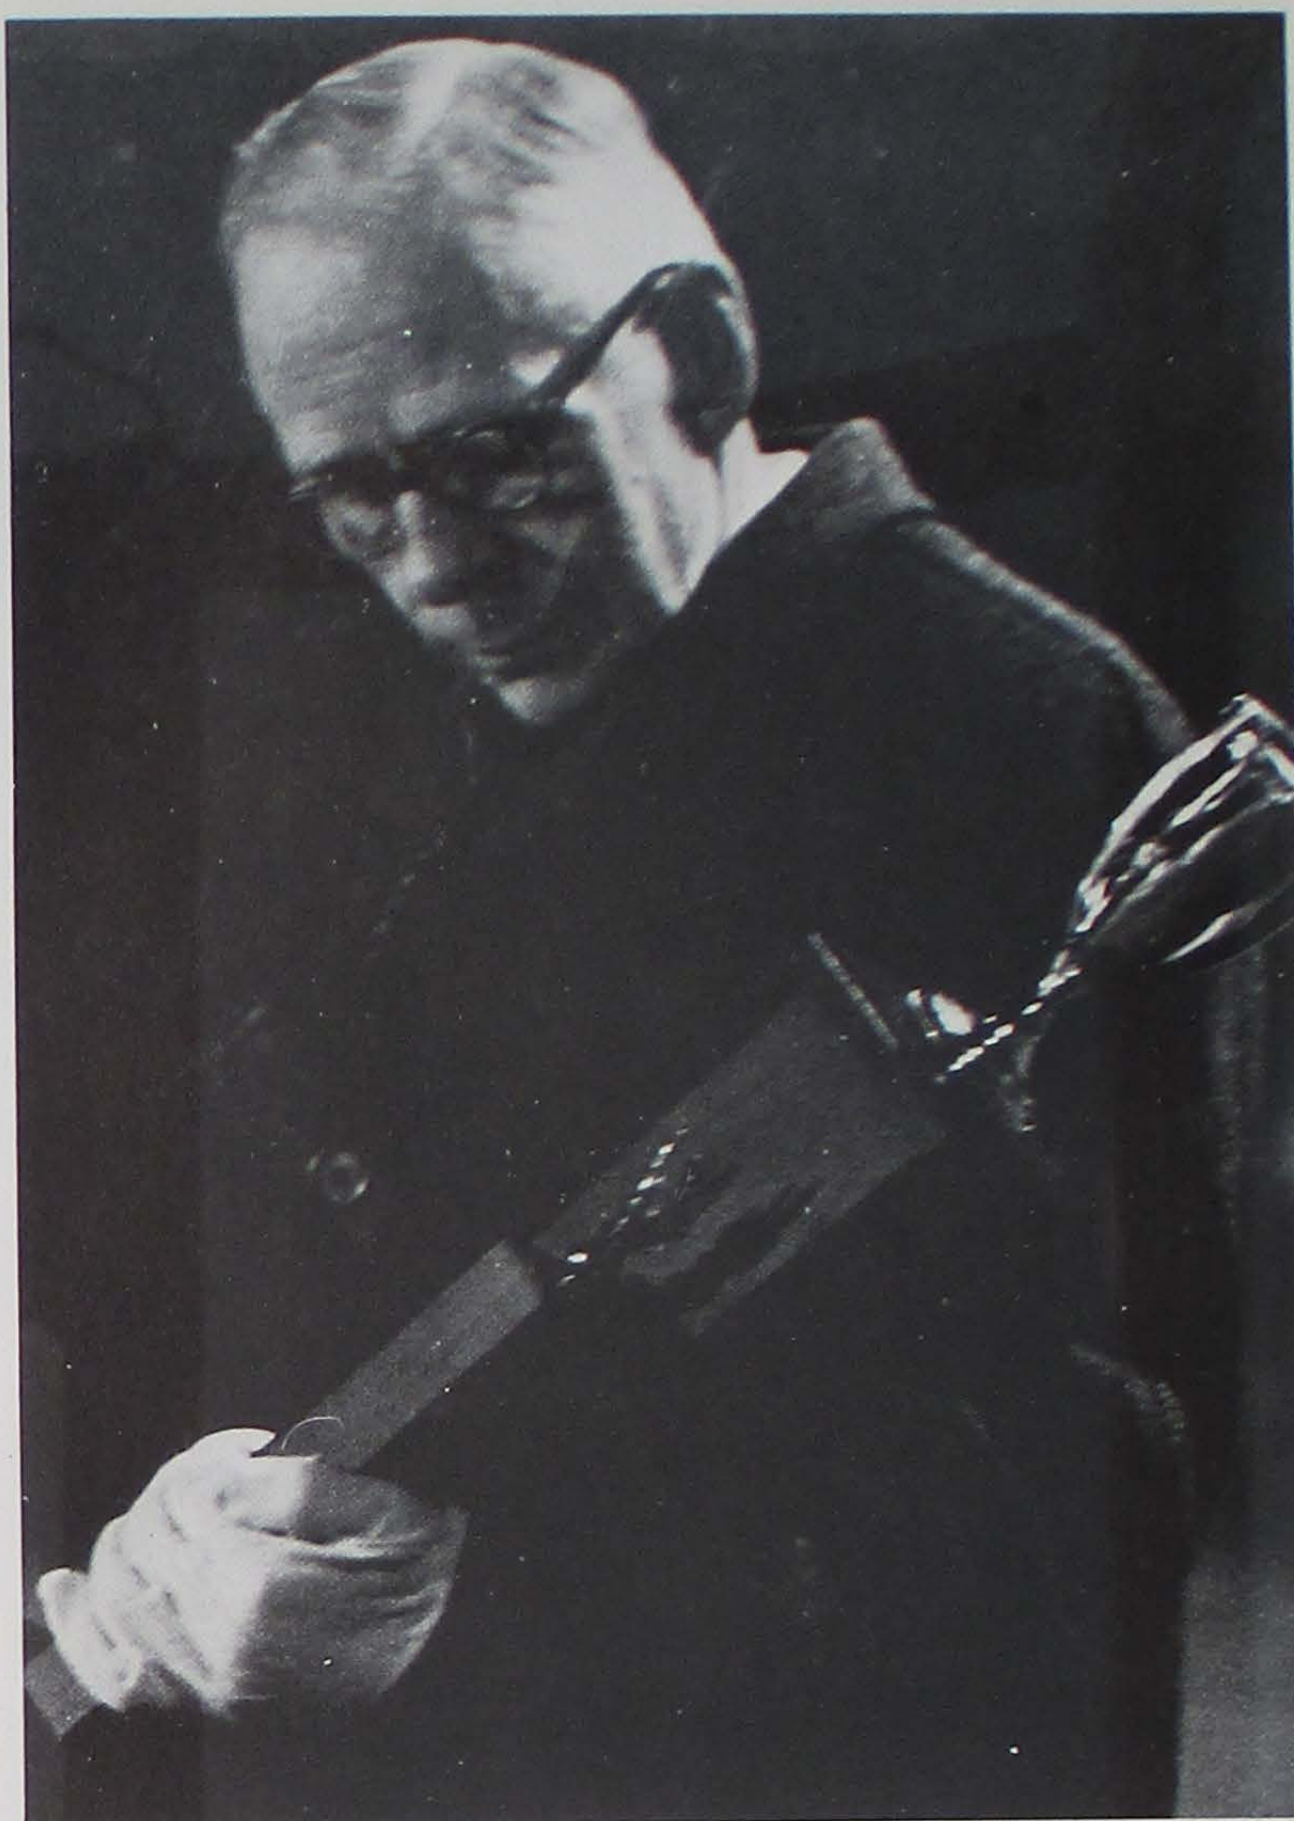

"It's been quite an experience," mused Mr. Richard Day, concerning his 41 years at AHS as band director, "to have been in one place so long and witnessed changes that have taken place in the size of the school system and even the city itself. Activities and academic offerings have broadened.

"Ames has been an ideal community in which to raise our children and send them to school. I couldn't pick a nicer place to live.

"All in all, it's been a rewarding and gratifying experience."

Mr. Day's imaginative entries in the parades during Veishea, Iowa State University's spring open house, have won first place every year they were eligible, except in 1967, when the judges ruled that the band didn't follow the theme of that year.

ONE OF THE MOST POPULAR numbers with the students was the '67 Veishea entry in which the band played "The Stripper" and "The Magic Trumpet."

Orchestra provided instrumentalists with an opportunity to explore and play the more serious and demanding pieces which are in the symphonic branch of music. Mr. Richard McCoy, conductor of orchestra, has directed orchestra in its journey through the three B's—Bach, Beethoven and Brahms.

Orchestra members, along with other fine arts students, tried out for a place in the All-State festival. Three orchestra members and a concert band player were honored by being chosen. They were Anna Megregian, Cheryl Spohnheimer, Gary Burkhalter, and Jim Dickson.

Vocal musicians entertain during practices, concerts

Sometimes harmonious, other times a little flat, but always spirited and eager, the vocal musicians' voices floated from the music room, to be either hailed or cursed by students in study hall and throughout the school.

Choir, madrigal, girls' glee, mixed chorus and sophomore mixed chorus were the groups that comprised the vocal music section of the fine arts department for this year.

Under the direction of Mr. Al Wiser, these groups sang a wide range of music, from classical pieces to jazz, hymns to ballads, madrigals to pop. Thus, their concerts have had something for everyone, even if everyone didn't come.

The vocal music department has put on numerous concerts and an assembly. The choir sang at the Elks' memorial service and the junior members will sing at baccalaureate.

Competing for the All-State Festival has become traditional at AHS. This year three vocalists were selected: Mary Lou Williams, Tom Schattauer, and Randy Johnson.

Apprentice dramatists lay basic foundation in dramatic arts

In drama classes, Mr. Ronald Zitzlsperger attempted to give the students a foundation not only in acting but in the technical aspects of drama.

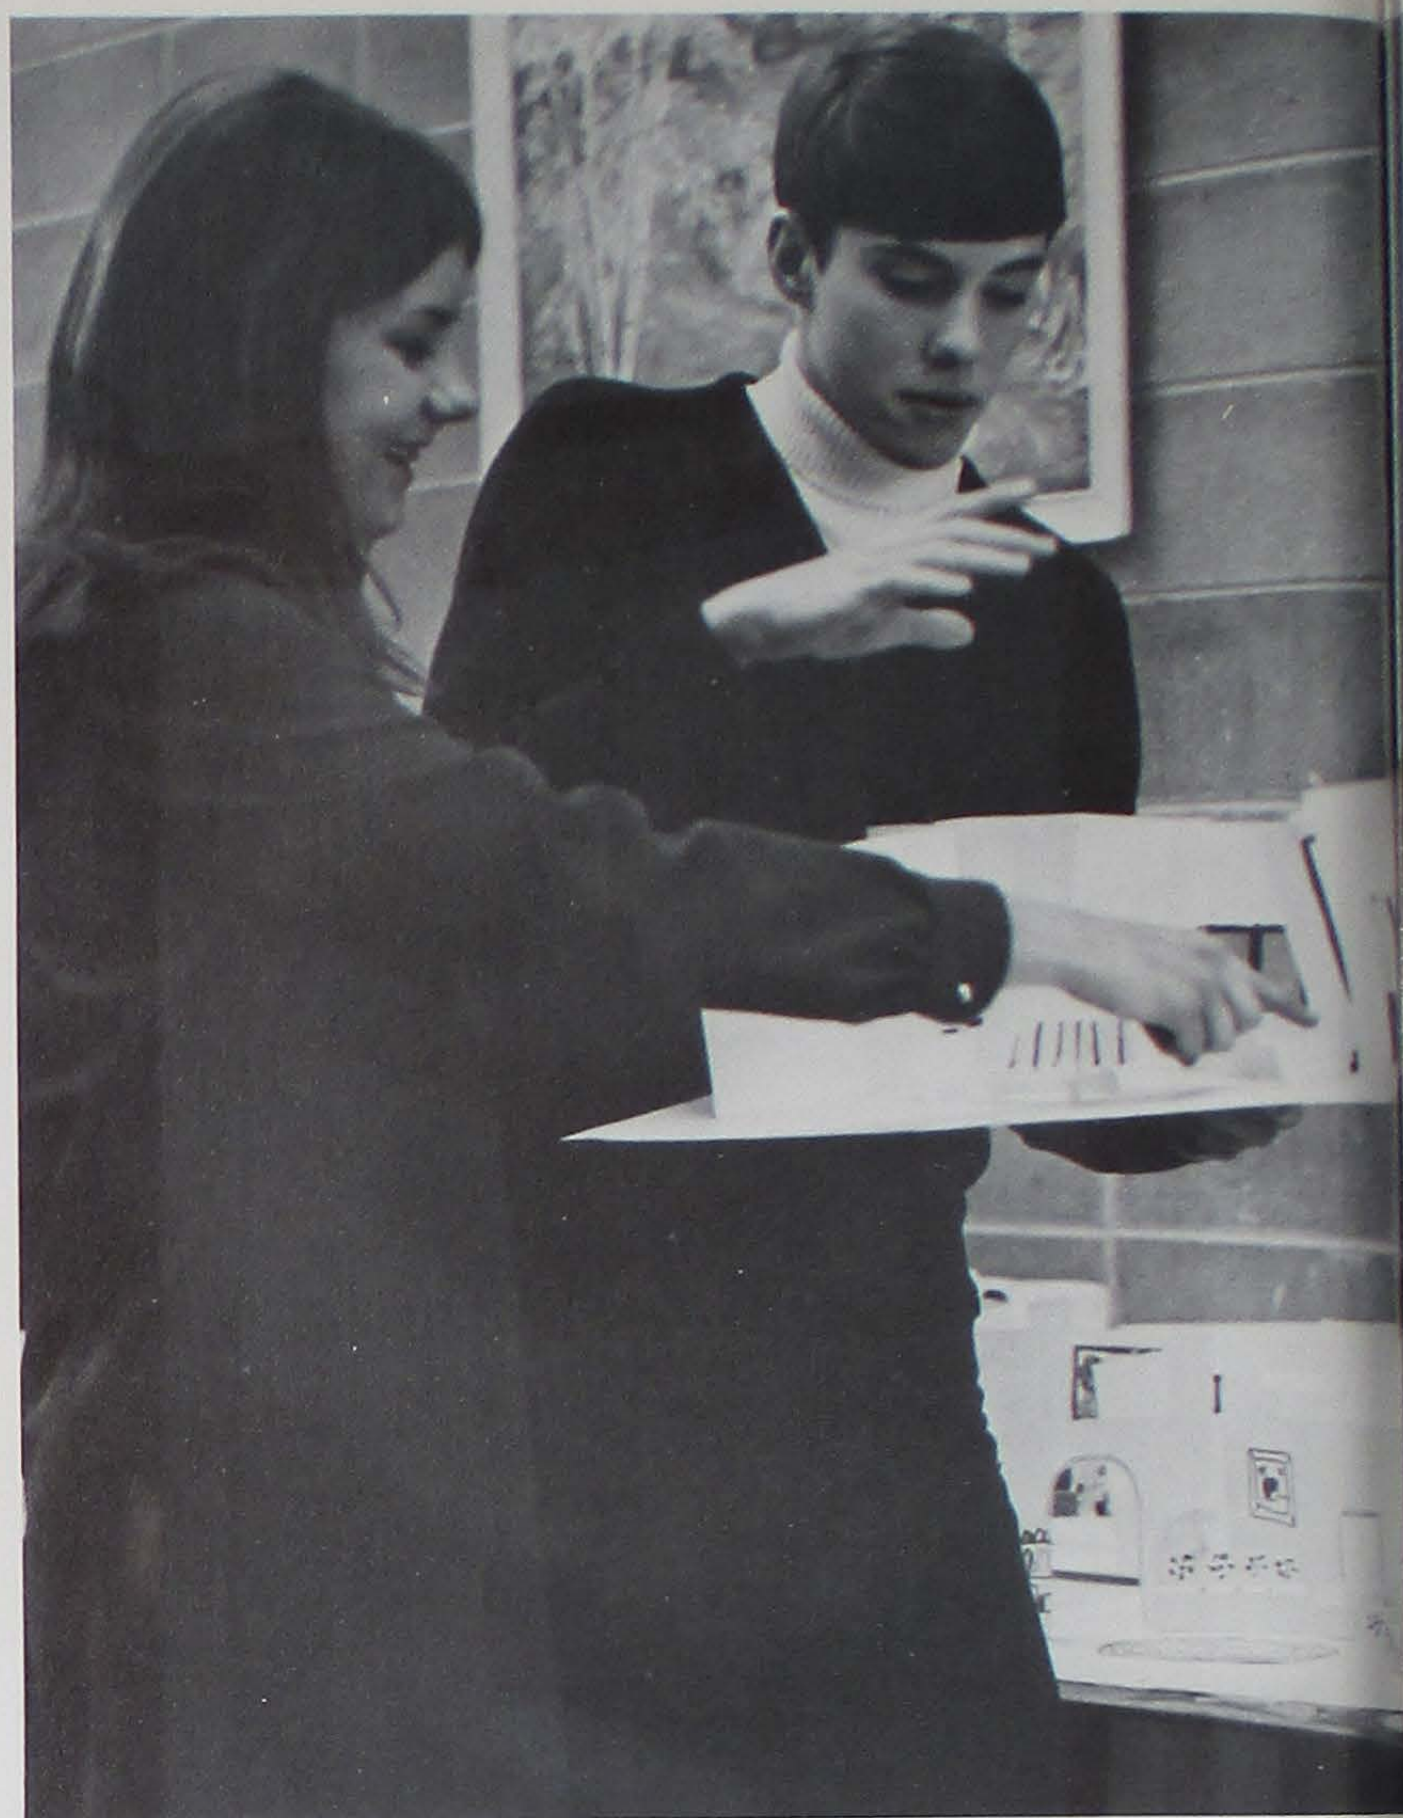

In Beginning Drama, the curriculum was mainly concerned with drama's history and growth. The first-year dramatists also learned some of the rudiments of makeup, scenery, lights, sound, and other backstage skills.

Advanced Drama concentrated on polishing and refining the student's acting ability. Through readings and producing plays for their own classes, students were introduced to the techniques of acting.

'Sleeping Beauty' packs auditorium

Radical changes were present in the drama department's winter play. First, it was a children's theater, "The Sleeping Beauty of Loreland"; secondly, a Saturday afternoon matinee was scheduled to allow more children to come.

Both of these innovations were extremely successful as was evidenced when the auditorium was completely filled at the matinee. On Thursday and Saturday night there were also better than average crowds.

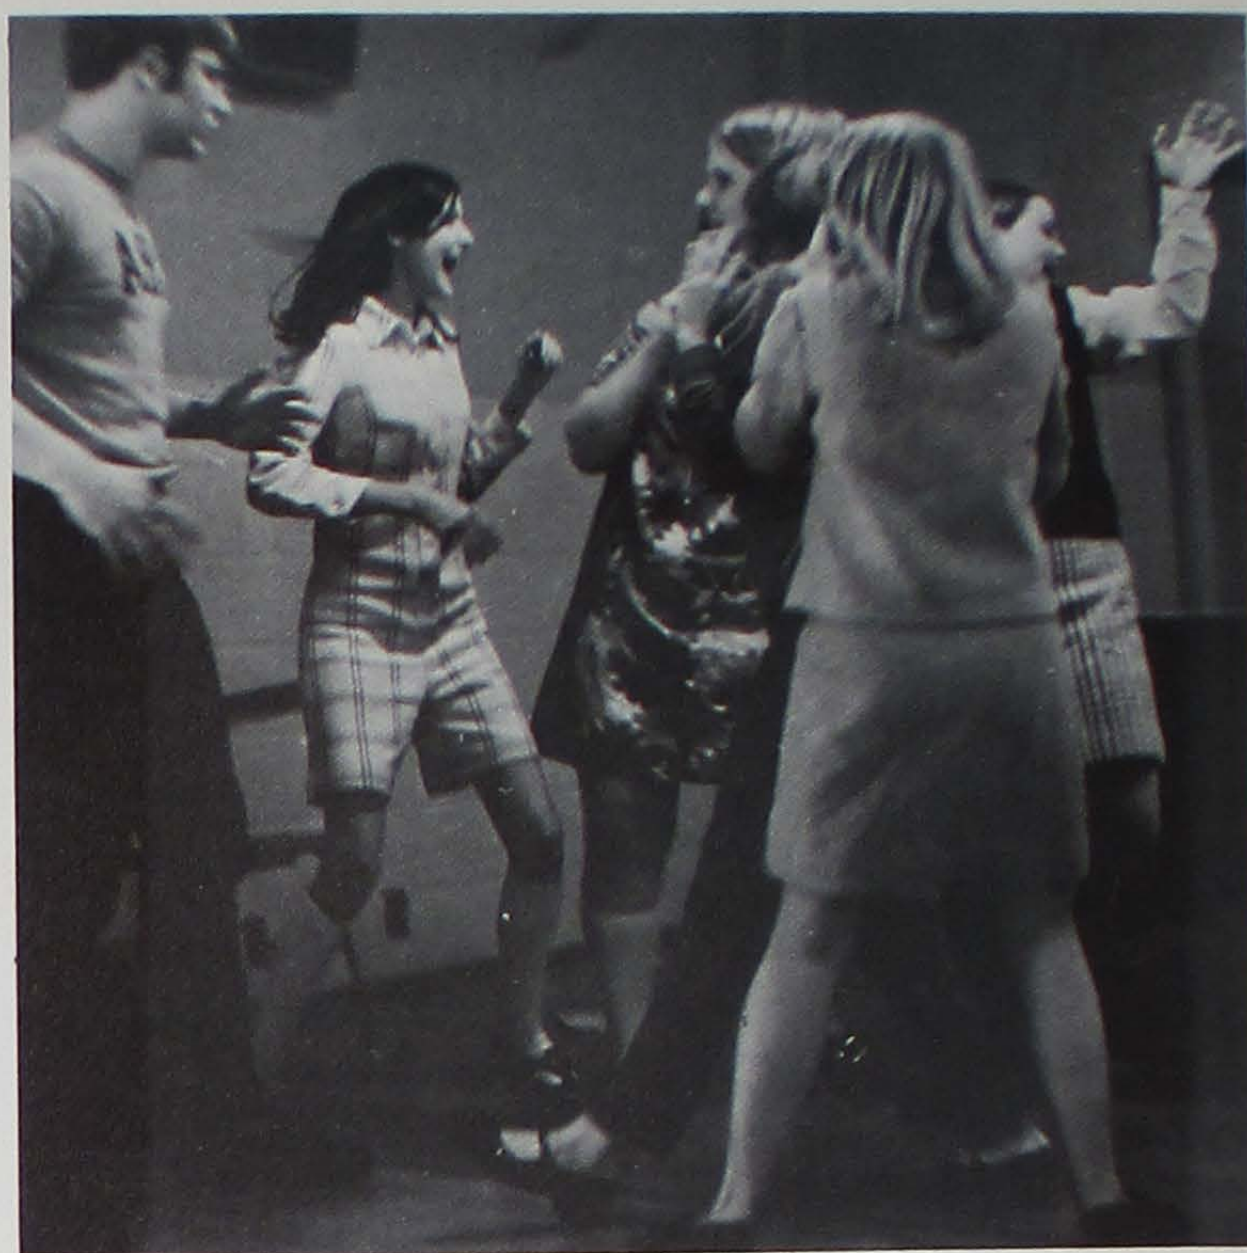

The performances were the finished products of more than six weeks of hard work by not only the actors but crew and backstage personnel.

While the Saturday night show may have ended it for the audience, it was only the beginning for cast and crews. There was still the all important "strike" party which allowed the members of the play to talk, dance, and let off some steam.

"Learning through experience" aptly described the journalism classes taught by Mrs. Grace Bauske. They were responsible for writing and editing the school paper, The Ames High Web.

The first and second period journalism classes alternated on preparing the Web. While one class struggled in writing copy, cropping and cutting pictures, juggling layout, proofreading and counting heads, the other class was learning about the history of journalism and practicing its journalistic techniques.

The Web was published by the staffs of seniors once a week in the Ames Daily Tribune, usually on Tuesday or Wednesdays.

Candy, bake sales provide money for club parties

Fiesta, Fete, Fest ... Spanish, French, and German clubs all celebrated traditional holidays of their countries. By selling bake goods, Spanish Club raised pesos for a Christmas party of games and pinatas. Dr. David Wall showed slides of South America at the party. French Club sang in the halls and went caroling at hospitals and at nursing homes for Christmas. In February, the Annual Mardi Gras was held, using funds from candy sales. This year Spanish and German classes were invited. Unusual costumes, food, and folk dances preceded the crowning of the king and queen. The German Club party at Shakey's Pizza Parlor was financed by candy sales. For entertainment the German Club Band played. New traditions with the old made it a festive year for language clubs.

Opportunities to expand learning are found in the clubs of Ames High. Art Club provides time and materials for students to work on projects of their choice. After acquiring fifty-two points by serving on play work crews, a student is eligible to join Palm Club. Dinners, trips, and helping the drama department are all part of their duties. Debate Club, sponsored by Mr. Scott, traveled around the state to participate in debates. Science Seminar broadens the concept of science and offers lectures and discussions on relevant topics. Science Fair projects also are worked on and discussed. The Key Club is sponsored by Kiwanis Club and provides services to Ames High. The Annual Pancake Day was held again.

AHS Model UN delegates represent Somalia, Albania and South Africa

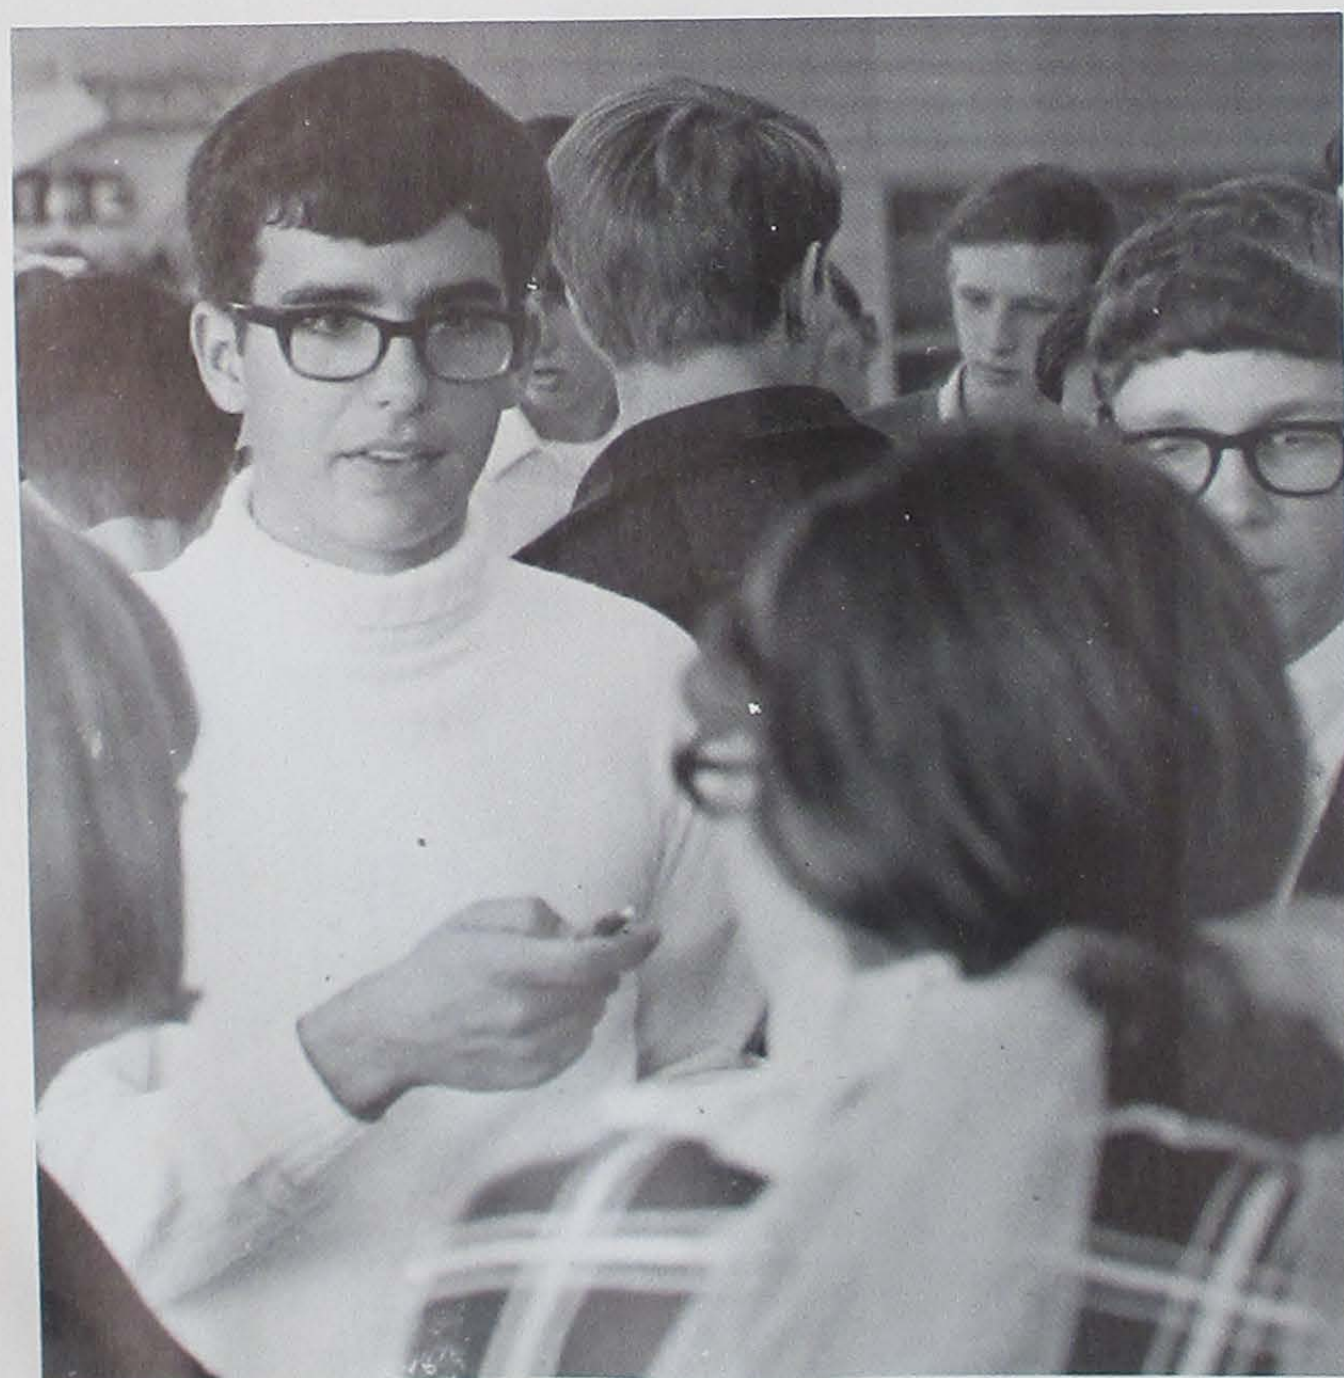

A rapidly growing organization at Ames High, the Model UN boasted 24 members. In Model UN, the members learn not just about the United Nations, but about many countries.

In an effort to familiarize new delegates with Model UN procedure, three workshops were held. The first was for block management and caucusing. During the second, position papers and resolutions were discussed. The last workshop, held in the Ames High cafeteria, was the Model General Assembly.

In March, the actual Model UN was held. Ames High delegations represented Somalia, Albania and South Africa. The assembly's purpose is to inform its members about the management of the UN and how to make extensive studies of another country and to gain experience working with and against other people.

Firesquad, hall monitors combine to supervise conduct in school life

"Your friendly Ames High gestapo" is one of the affectionate names given to the highly efficient Firesquad and hall monitors.

Firesquad members perform various duties around the school. They supervise lunch lines, help regulate the parking lot, oversee fire drills, and insure that school policies and rules are heeded.

The hall monitors have a variety of tasks that revolve around the halls. They greet and aid visitors to the school, check passes of students walking through the halls, patrol the restrooms, and otherwise maintain law and order in the halls.

Under their sponsors, Mrs. Hiedeman, Mr. Enquist, and Mr. Covey, the Firesquad and hall monitors have worked together to make Ames High a better school.

A-Club sells programs to lower bus rates

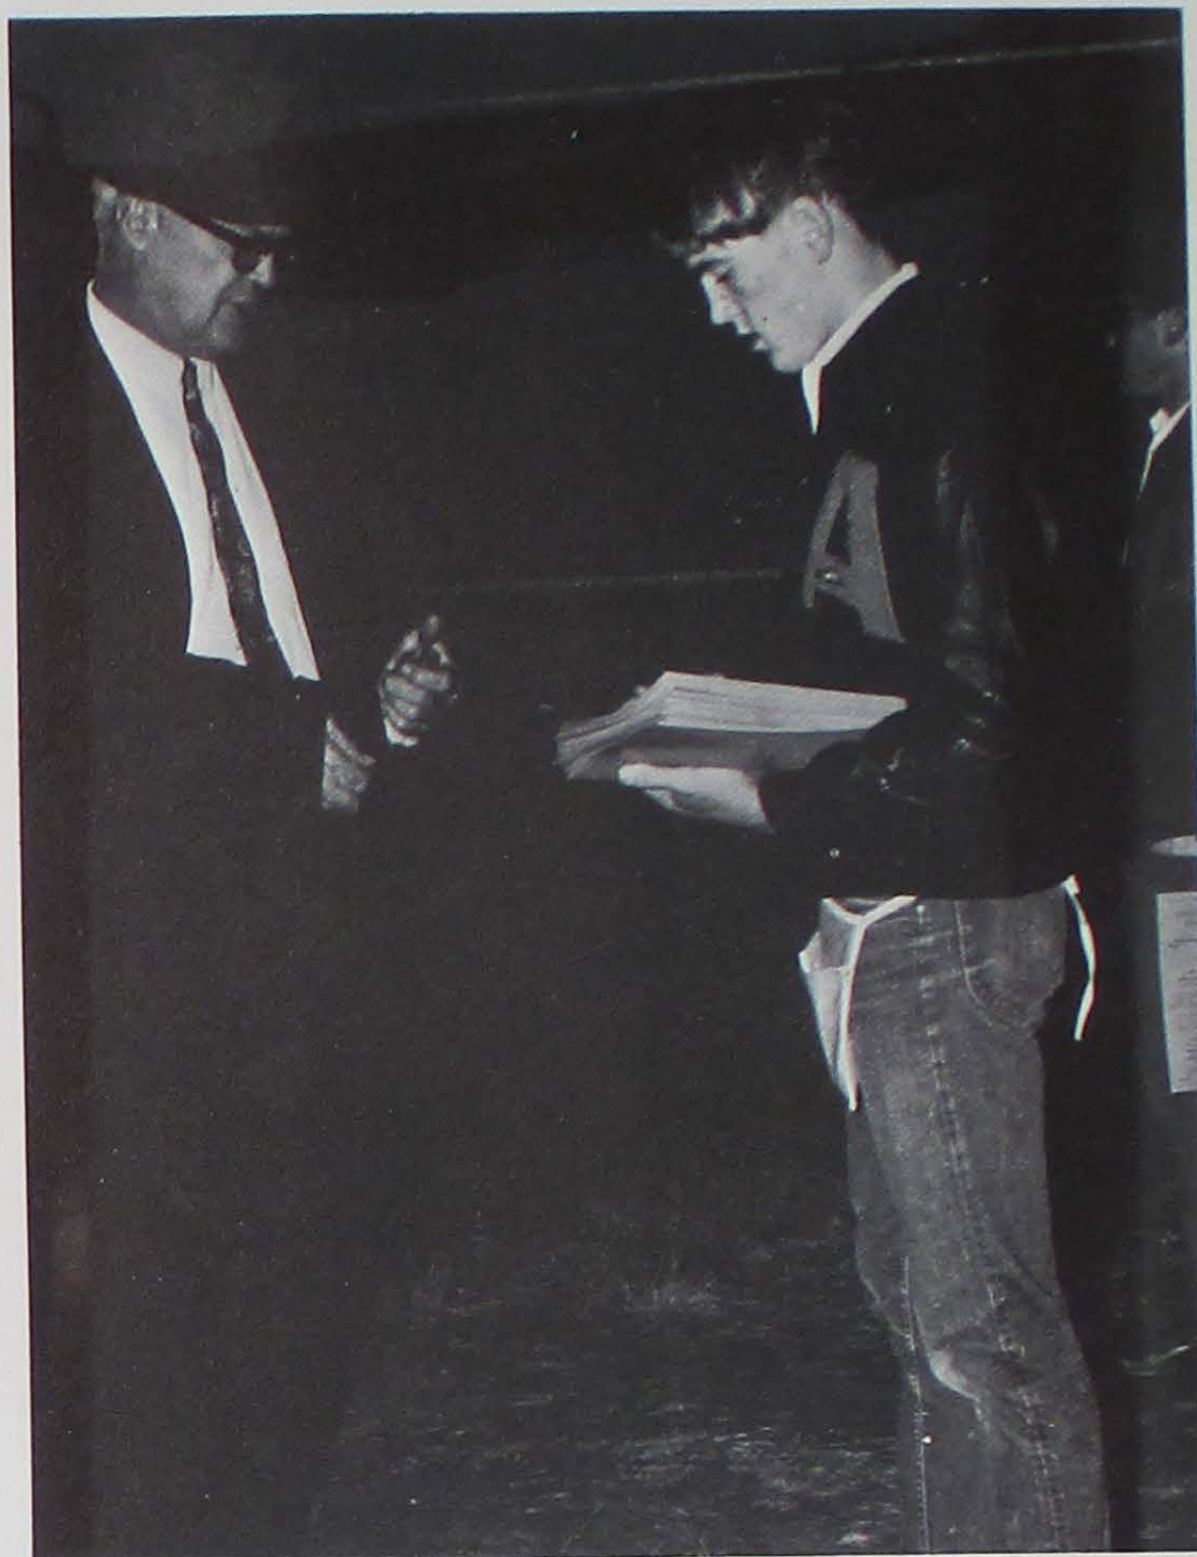

The 1969 A-Club, sponsored by Mr. Arnold Zediker, included all AHS boys who lettered in athletics. This year, A-Club worked on money-raising projects to lower rates to out-of-town games, to give donations for a new press box, and to put on Twirp Week. Money was raised by selling programs at football games and by sponsoring a dance. One of the special events of the year was escorting the candidates for the Spirit Sweetheart coronation.

Quint Captains — ten straight in BB tourney

Mr. Spratt's boys intramurals offered a chance for any boy not on a varsity team to participate in a number of different sports. Intramurals continued the entire year, changing sports with the season. Cross-country, football, swimming, wrestling, basketball, and track were the sports covered by the intramural program. The boys could choose to be in one or all of the different sports.

Events of the year included a track tournament in the fall, a wrestling and swimming tournament in the early winter, and a basketball tourney lasting through the whole winter season. In the spring the boys participated in a decathlon.

Committees perform Student Council tasks

Eleven standing committees worked "behind the scenes" this year to conduct much of the business of the Student Council. Eight committees remained the same as in years past. They were the Assembly, Awards, Citizenship, Election, Finance, Public Relations, Social, and Welcoming Committees. For the first time, the Boys and Girls Service Committees (formerly the Boys Club and Girls Club) were incorporated into the Student Council framework under the single title of Service Committee. Two other committees, the Human Rights Committee and the Problems Committee were added to the student council this year. The Human Rights Committee was responsible for promoting greater understanding and brotherhood among students. The Problems Committee, reactivated after a semester of dormancy, concentrated on seeking out and solving conflicts within the school. In addition to the standing committees, an informal committee was formed to deal with the completion of the student lounge.

The first semester Student Council was headed by Dennis Healy, president; Biff Baird, vice-president; Becky Seiser, secretary, and Ken Russell, treasurer. The main emphasis of the council was placed on an early completion of the student lounge. A ceiling and light fixtures were installed, and the walls were painted by student volunteers during Christmas vacation.

Several other projects were carried on by the first semester Student Council. The citizenship committee collected nearly $600 in voluntary contributions for Archie Greene, a former student body president now suffering from multiple sclerosis. The first in a series of exchanges with other schools in the new Big Eight Conference began when ten students visited Fort Dodge High School for a day. In addition, the Student Council raised money through a concert presented by Ames High alumnus Dick Schory and his percussion pops orchestra.

2nd semester council opens student lounge

After weeks of selecting furniture, carpeting, and a sound system, and laying out floor plans, the second semester Student Council opened the student lounge. In addition to the completion of the lounge, the Student Council was engaged in several other activities. A basketball game was staged in March between the Harlem All-Stars and the Ames High faculty to raise money for the Student Council. The second Big Eight Conference exchange was held in April when ten students explored Mason City High School for a day after hosting students from there. The bus rates to the Mason City basketball game and the state wrestling tournament were reduced by the second semester council. A contribution from the basketball concessions helped to lower these bus costs. Fourteen students attended the Central District Student Council Conference in Tama where Dr. Ray Pugh was the featured speaker.

The second semester Student Council was headed by Clay Bauske, president; Ted Rozeboom, vice-president; Becky Seiser, secretary; Ken Russell, treasurer; Tom Schattauer, parliamentarian; and Chuck Voss, acting vice-president.

Council acts as hub of school activities

In addition to their regular business, the Student Council supervised the organization of many school activities. The Human Rights committee planned Brotherhood Week and the Brotherhood assembly program. Four pairs of candidates entered the second semester student body election. John Siemers and Mitch Roth, Maura Peglar and Ed Pier, Clay Bauske and Ted Rozeboom, and Fred Dahm and Chuck Voss all sought the Student Council offices.

Platform speeches over the sound system opened election week. Following these, it was open season for banners, buttons, and posters. Major planks of platforms this year ranged from allowing auditing of classes to lowering costs of fan buses.

For a change, the election assembly was not cluttered with skits, but was a straightforward presentation of facts. Even the traditional humorous question asked the vice-presidential candidates—"What qualities do you feel make you the best candidate?"—didn't sound funny, but interruptions from "janitors," a basketball team, and Greg Mulhall holding up signs directing the audience to laugh and boo at inappropriate times kept the audience in hysterics and the candidates confused.

Final tabulations showed that the Bauske-Rozeboom team was elected.

ONE OF A THOUSAND: yet each vote, such as John Heer's, was treated as one in a million.

Homecoming '68 was the kind people dream about. It started drearily; there was a slow drizzle all morning, the new orange Pep Club turtle-necks didn't arrive for Color Day, and the traditional window painting had to be confined to the high school this year. But in the afternoon—just in time for the caravan and pep rally—the sun broke through, the temperature rose, and it was a lovely afternoon and evening.

In preparation, Pep Club girls decorated lockers and halls. The team wore their orange "away" jerseys to school and everyone else sported a bit of orange. The football boys were treated to their favorite subjects, food, both in their lockers and at lunch. Following school a seven-block-long caravan formed which paraded to the Band Shell for a pep rally. Pep Club girls' performed in a skit based on West Side Story, Comic awards were given for homeroom door decorations, and the Spirit Jug was given to Homeroom 124. Homecoming Queen Sandy Underhill and attendants Pat Moldenhauer and Lynda McConkey were announced. Enthusiastic Pep Club girls snakedanced down Main Street.

Later that evening the Ames High football team defeated Cedar Falls, 34-6. Halftime at the game, which Ames led 14-0, had an added thrill when the queen, her attendants, and their escorts paraded across the field to be presented to the crowd. Their reign was made complete at "Shades of Autumn," the Homecoming party, where the band, The Shades, entertained the students. Such were the ingredients of Homecoming '68.

Sweetheart climaxes 'Love Your Spirit' Week

"Love Your Spirit" Week ended on Valentine's Day, but love was not the only subject involved. Friday was the deadline for paying the balance of yearbooks bought on contract. The Spirit Sweetheart was elected to climax the week. Twelve candidates were chosen by the student body.

The Spirit staff presented its Sweetheart at halftime of the West Waterloo game Saturday night. Charlie Ellis, master of ceremonies, was assisted by cupids, hearts of cards, frogmen, and flower girls. Spirit's Special Sweetheart was Mrs. Barbara Ward, Spirit sponsor. Norma Kilstrom was crowned Sweetheart, with Jane Hicks and Pat Moldenhauer as attendants.

Assemblies and dances invigorate student spirit

STUDENT TALENT is displayed by pianist Jill Kempthorne at the Talent Assembly.

Breaking up the routine of class schedules, assemblies educated and entertained students. Programs varied from cheering the Little Cyclones to planning the future. Guest speakers addressed the student body on educational opportunities, vocations, and safe driving. Among the speakers were Dr. Underhill from ISU and Roger Ward, Indianapolis 500 race driver. The Talent Assembly exhibited student musical ability and slapstick skits in the "commercials," while athletes and scholars were recognized in the awards assemblies.

While assemblies highlighted the school week, dances enlivened the weekend. The cafeteria was the place to be after football and basketball home games, win or lose. Live bands, ranging from rock to soul, provided inspiration for dancers and listeners alike.

Cyclone record 5-3-1; 'One whale of a season'

Ames High football got a boost this year from the entrance into the Big Eight Conference. The newly formed conference includes Ames, Marshalltown, Fort Dodge, Newton, Cedar Falls, East Waterloo, West Waterloo, and Mason City.

The Cyclones had a tough time with the determined Boone Treadors in a game that ended in a tie, 32-32. The gridders had an uphill fight during the entire game but scored 13 points in the final minutes to tie the game.

The next two games pitted Ames against conference foes Marshalltown and Fort Dodge. In the first game, Ames traveled to Marshalltown and doubled their opponents' score, 48 to 24. In the following game, Coach Johnson took his footballers against the Fort Dodge Dodgers. The game was tied at half-time 7-7. The final score, however, showed Ames the winner, 27-7.

Ames squeezed past Newton in a game that was decided in the final minutes. Jon Hunziker recorded a safety in the winning effort, 23-19.

At Homecoming, the highlight of the football season, Ames High led Cedar Falls at half-time, 14-0, and won 34-6. The spirit for the game was high throughout the week preceding the game and lasted up until the gun stopped the action. The coach expressed his thanks for the school's support and said that it helped them to have "one whale of a season."

East Waterloo, last year's No. 1 team in the state, found Ames to be more than they expected. The Little Cyclones scored more points against the visitors than any other team in the state but lost the close battle, 26-21.

The Little Cyclones next took on the cross-town rival of the previous week, West Waterloo. After a long trip, the Cyclones came out on the short end of the score, 33-7. The following week, the Cyclones played their last conference game at Mason City. The gridders fell short, 25-21. With the loss, Ames finished 4th in the conference, 4-3.

In the final game of the season, Ames High downed the Roosevelt Roughriders, 27-25. The Riders failed to score in the final seconds because of the Cyclones' defense. Mike Owings, Jon Hunziker, and Tim Linder were elected captains for next year. They will replace this year's captains, Dennis Healy, Biff Baird, and Danny Craig.

Cyclones enter first year in Big Eight competition

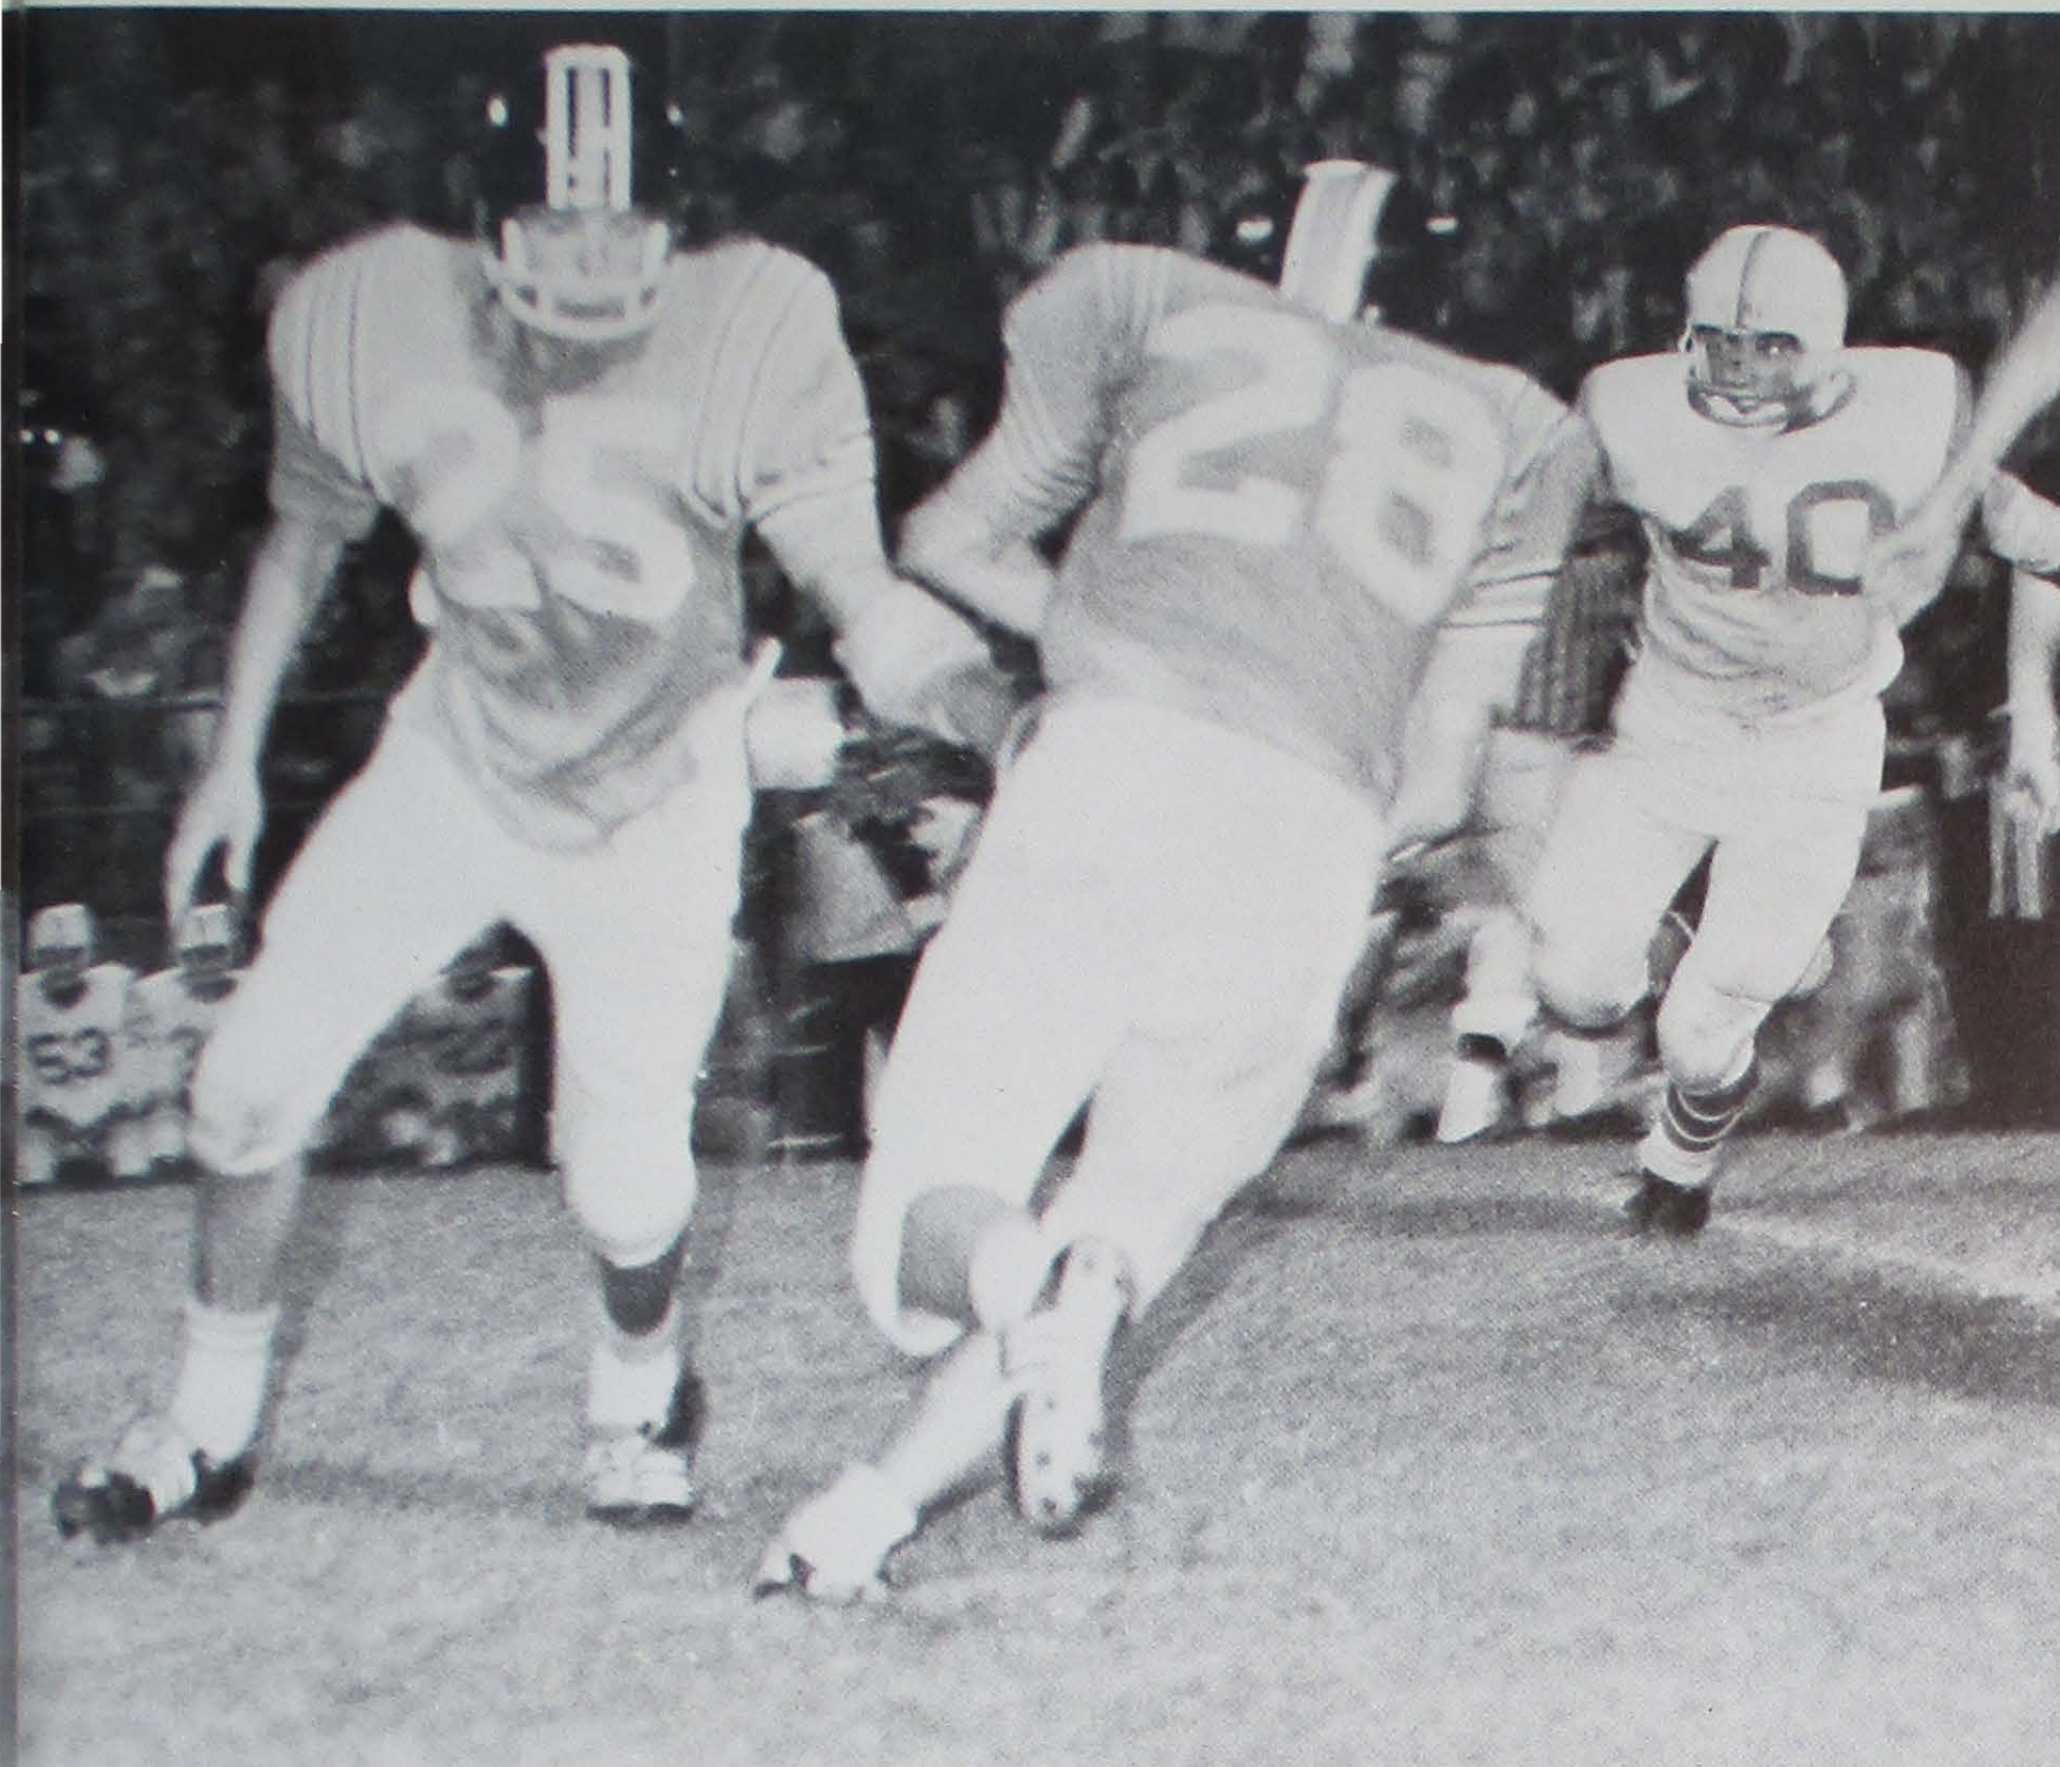

Ames was represented on the first team All-Conference selection by Danny Craig at quarterback and Dennis Healy at halfback. Conrad Anderson received second team honors while Don Page and Chuck Carter were given honorable mention.

Danny Craig was also selected for the second team All-State football team. Danny completed 50 per cent of his passes for a total of 1387 yards. Danny also ran the ball 107 times during the season for a total of 303 yards rushing. Conrad Anderson was on the receiving end of most of Danny's passes (30 for 312 yards). Dennis Healy averaged 5.7 yards per carry this season. Greg Mulhall led the nation in punting with an average of more than forty-eight yards for 24 kicks.

Steve Highland returned this season after a concussion in his sophomore year ruled out contact sports. He returned as a kicker who converted 86 per cent of his tries. Doug Fosberg led the team in tackles (105 for 11.5 per game). Conrad Anderson made his presence known on defense by averaging 7.4 tackles per game. Steve Siedelmann, in his second year as a starter, had an overall average of 5.5 tackles per game.

Sophs finish 9-1; win 9 straight

The Ames High sophomore football team, under the direction of Coach Arnold Zediker, finished the season after victories over sophomore and junior varsity teams with a record of 9-1.

In their first game, the AHS sophs lost a close contest with Des Moines Lincoln, 13-6. Bouncing back, the team started a chain of victories that lasted throughout the remainder of the season. Their first victim was Marshalltown, 34-0. Ankeny fell next to the rolling Cyclones by the score of 47-19. The Saydel JV found the Cyclones too much and lost, 18 to 6. Traveling to Newton, the yearling gridders rolled up 32 points while holding their opponent to only 7 points.

The same two teams met several days later. The final score of this game was 46-6. In the next game, Ames scored more points than in any other game (55) to only 26 for their opponent, Boone.

Fort Dodge put up a fight against the once defeated sophs but fell short, 32-47. Des Moines Hoover gave the yearlings a scare during the game but the Ames sophomore team managed to win, 19-13. In the final game of the year, the future Little Cyclones downed the Roosevelt Roughriders' sophomore team, 40-7.

Little Cyclones harriers end with perfect season

The Little Cyclone Cross-Country Team turned out to be the best in the state again this year. Winning every meet in which they competed, the harriers compiled a total of eight victories. The secret to all these wins was in the workouts of the runners. This year, emphasis was placed on running "quarters." The idea was to run as many as possible and then run a few more. This system built up both speed and endurance, the two key factors behind cross-country.

Dave Powell, tri-captain, proved to be the top Cyclone runner. Dave recovered from a knee injury and went on to win all but one of the meets in which he competed, having a 4:28.0 at the State Mile and a 10:00.8 at the State Cross Country meet.

SPEED AND ENDURANCE are key factors as Tom Montag demonstrates.

First season: 5-10; second season: 3-0

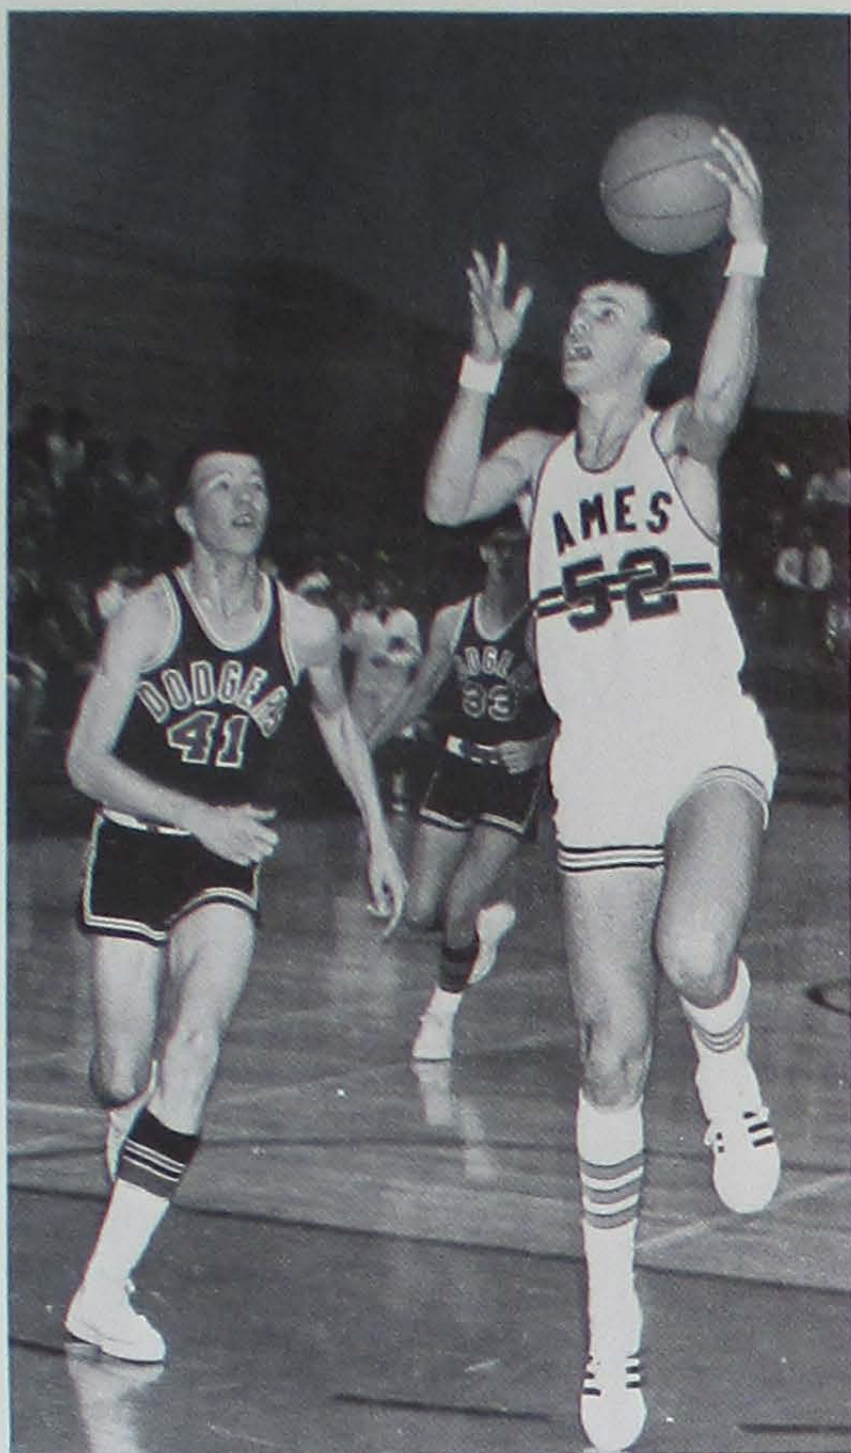

After starting slowly, losing three of the first four games by nearly identical scores, the Ames High Little Cyclones basketball team bounced back to hand Newton a 15-point defeat. Paul McFarland's 21 points were high as Ames held All-Stater Orv Salmon to 16 points.

Ames dropped three of the next four games by a total of 11 points before downing Fort Dodge by ten.

Ames led Newton at halftime 27-23, before losing in the final seconds, 61-60. The Cyclones led throughout the third quarter, but relinquished the lead with less than one minute to go in the game.

The next three conference games hurt the Cyclones as they dropped a three pointer to Mason City, lost to previously defeated Cedar Falls by 23, and then were walloped by number 1 rated East Waterloo, 46-17.

After this sound defeat, Coach George Duvall announced the end of the current season and the start of the "second season." He elevated sophomore Gene Larson to varsity and called an extra practice before the Cyclones defeated West Waterloo. This started a string of victories that lasted until the end of the 18-game schedule.

The Ames High mini-Cyclones ended with a 15-3 record, second only to undefeated Fort Dodge. Two of the Ames' defeats came at the hot hands of the Dodgers. The other defeat went to West Waterloo.

The sophs were led by the scoring and rebounding of 6'4" Gene Larson.

Narrowly escaping defeat, the sophs were forced into overtime three times during the season. In the first overtime game, Newton went down to the Cyclones, 51-49. The second, to Marshalltown, was won by Ames, 91-88, in three overtimes. Cedar Falls forced the sophs into one overtime but lost by two, 60-58.

Matmen finish 5-6; send 2 to state

"These boys have worked hard. They have sweated blood, to use a wrestling term. They know it and we know it." This is the way that Coach Jack Mendenhall summed up the 1969 wrestling season.

The hard work that started in late October brought five dual meet victories to six defeats in varsity competition. The sophomore team, new this year, went undefeated, 7-0. In addition, Ames finished first in the Ames Quadrangular, fourth in the Audubon Invitational, and fifth in the Ames Tourney.

Swimmers finish 12-2 to grab 1st Big 8 title

The Ames High swimming team kept up the tradition of successful swim teams this year by producing a 12-2 season and by sweeping both the Ames Invitational and the Big 8 conference meets. Winning the conference title was a special honor this year since this was Ames High's first year in Big 8 competition.

The entire team competed well, facing defeat in only two dual meets at the hands of two versatile teams, Roosevelt and Hoover. In addition to dual and conference performances, Ames High placed seventh in the State meet.

New track helps boys prepare for spring

Indoor trackmen had a new practice area this year as well as the one used in past years. With the newly completed track at Iowa State and the older track previously used, the trackmen had more space to operate in than ever before. And with nearly 100 boys out this year, this added space was a blessing.

The conditioning program was also a little different this year. Running "tops" or time-trials several times a week was not unusual. "Ladders" were also an important part of the workouts. This process consisted of running sprints, building up to longer distances, and then returning to sprints again. Regular workouts were followed up by free running, hurdling, high-jumping or just about anything.

All of this was done to prepare the trackmen for the federation and state meets late in March, and it also proved to be a good basis for spring track.

The Ames School Board and the high school administration worked together behind the scenes to systematize and define responsibility in various areas of the curriculum and to host an NCA evaluation during the 1968-69 school year. Under the guidance of Dr. John Wroblewski, in his second year as director of curriculum for Ames schools, curriculum guides were prepared for the social studies and English departments.

The North Central Association, of which Ames High is a member, conducted an evaluation this year. In 1967-68, detailed reports were compiled by the various departments. These reports were sent to the NCA for study. On February 18, a committee of about twenty-five faculty members from the University of Iowa arrived at the high school for a three-day study of the school and its curriculum. On the basis of their evaluation and the written evaluation submitted by the school, Ames High was given a rating.

Possible plans for a fine arts center to be constructed on the Ames High campus within the next few years also were studied by the school board and administration this year. The proposed center will contain an auditorium and the music and drama departments.

Jim Ryan chosen as president of Senior Class of '69

Suddenly it was the senior year for more than 360 students at Ames High. Faced with a phantasmagoria of decisions and deadlines, seniors busily prepared for graduation. The Senior Senate, consisting of one representative from each senior homeroom, assumed responsibility for the endless tasks of raising money for caps, gowns, graduation announcements, and name cards. Officers this year were Jim Ryan, president; Dave Vandeventer, vice president; Mary Warner, secretary; Barb Brown and Kathy Smith, class co-treasurers. In the whirl and confusion of post-graduate plans, the senior year slipped by and plans became reality all too soon.

 The WEB, especially Mrs. Grace Bauske and John Parks.
 Mr. Vince Coyle, SPIRIT'S honorary staff member, for sports team pictures.
 Mr. Herbert Adams and Mr. Everett Ritland for patience and consideration in times of trial.
 Mrs. Cathy Stamm for tolerating staff members in her classroom at deadlines.
 Miss Dorothy Gugel and her students for producing the SPIRIT'S artwork, especially Wendy Tompkin and Ruth Olson.
 Miss Mary Jane Brown, of the Taylor Publishing Company in Dallas, for working out our difficulties.
 Pryor and Andy Ward, for holding the fort for their mom, who was at school many Saturdays and late nights helping us.

Behind the scenes, after the fact

All has happened that will get into the 1969 book. The events are past and memories are all that remain, caught by camera and pen.

Every Spirit takes 18 months to produce, from the time the new junior staff comes on the scene until the last pages of their book are sent to press. The book comes to life as we work on it; each book has a personality of its own, a blend of all the personalities who help create it.

In this Spirit, we tried to take the reader "behind the scenes." For the staff, this meant hours recording what took the students a year to live. As we put the book together, though, we came to realize that it is impossible to tell the full story of a school year; "tell it like it was" became "tell it the best you can."

This, then, is Ames High School, 1968-69, told as best we could.
